ACTIVITY IN COAL REGION CAUSE ALL SORTS OF TALK

Steel Corporation Likely to Develop Tract Soon

HOW TRADE WAS REFUSED

Significance Attached to Turn Down of Jones and Langhlin's Offer

The activity of the United States Steel Corporation engine[illegible] vicinity of Dunlevy, where the corporation recently acquired some big coal holdings, by purchase from the River Coal Combine, is causing all sorts of talk and speculation in this community. While nothing definitely is known as to the corporation's intentions, the concensus of opinion is that the 3,200 acres of undeveloped coal lying to the east and southeast of Charleroi are likely to be developed in the near future.

This coal, which is said to be the largest undeveloped tract in the Fourth Pool on this side of the river, will make a large development when the workings are once started, and will restore industrial conditions prevalent when the Vesta Mine No. 1 was working at its best. At one time this mine employed nearly 1,000 people who made Charleroi their trading headquarters. With the decline and ultimate working out of this mine Charleroi business interests received a severe blow. If this tract is opened and the work carried along on the same magnitude of the mine at Vesta No. 1, bright times are ahead for Charleroi.

When Vesta No. 1 was approaching the end the Jones & Langhlin people tried to negotiate a trade with the River Combine who held this tract of 3200 acres. It could have been mined through the Vesta openings and loaded from that tipple, and would have continued the work there for a number of years longer on the same scale. For some unexplained reason the owners refused to let go of their possession, although there was not much likelihood that the River Combine or the Pittsburg Coal company, which practically controls the Combine, would develop the coal in the near future.

In view of the recent deal this summer by which the United States Steel Corporation purchased between 7,000 and 8,000 acres of coal of the holdings of the Pittsburg Steel company and the River Combine, which included this tract of 3,200 acres, it is apparent that the refusal some years ago to deal with the Jones & Laughlin people was because the big Steel Corporation had its eye on this coal and wanted to use it at some future time. It has always been an open secret that the United States Steel Corporation would ultimately absorb the Pittsburg Coal Company, or the cream of its holdings, and the recent

SENSATION IS CAUSED

Death of Hickman at Beaver Jail of Much Local Interest

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

Much local interest way manifested in the death of Charles Hickman, who cheated the gallows at Beaver Tuesday by dying two hours before the sentence was scheduled to be caried out. Hickman, who was formerly employed as a tinner in Charleroi by F. H. Ransom and others was well known here, and the news of his death before the sentence could be carried out created a profound sensation.

Many of Hickman's acquaintances here were of the opinion that he committed suicide, but the post mortem examination revealed the fact that so far as the physicians could determine Hickman died a natural death. However, the stomach and some of the other organs have been sent to Pittsburg for chemical analysis, to fully determine whether or not Hickman secured poison.

As previously stated, the crime for which Hickman was to have been hanged was the murder of his wife, from who he was separated, whom he shot and killed in February, 1910, in Beaver. Hickman escaped from jail twice, but was recaptured, the first time at Monongahela.

Thomas Arrigo Gets Job on Seventh and Eighth Streets--Close Bidding Features the Award

Thomas Arrigo was awarded the contracts for grading and paving Seventh and Eighth streets between Fallowfield and Washington avenues by council Tuessday night at the regular adjourned meeting. Hastings and Piper were the other bidders. The paving is to be done this year and will be the first bit of work of the kind done under the supervision of the new borough engineer, Paul G. Elder.

All members of council were present, President J. K. Hein being in the chair. The bids were opened and tabulated. It was decided that for a foundation hard slag will be used and that Toronto repressed paving block, the same that has been used heretofore, be the kind of paving material used.

Close bidding featured the letting of the contracts. Arrigo's bid for Seventh street amounted to $1,383.25. Hastings and Piper's bid totaled $1,384.45, just $1.25 higher than that of Arrigo. On Eighth street there was more of a difference in the bids. Arrigo bid for the work $1,527.20, and Hastings and Piper asked for the job at $1,533.60. There was $6.40 difference between the two bids.

STEPS IN FRONT OF AUTOMOBILE BUT IS NOT HURT

While scuffling Tuesday afternoon in front of Umbel's pool room on McKean avenue, Walter Taylor, the attendant at the place made the mistake of stepping out into the street without first taking the precautions to stop, look, and listen His arrival in the thoroughfare was punctuated by the arrival at the same time of an automobile. It is a natural law that no two bodies can occupy the same space at the same time, so Walter impelled by an irresistable force moved onward. He thought it was all up with him. But it wasn't; the worst injuries he sustained were numerous bruises and cuts about his lower limbs.

NO CHANGE TO BE MADE IN FIRE LIMITS AT PRESENT

Ordinance Presented to Council Sent to Committee

CITIZENS DISCUSS MATTER

Proposed Reduction of Boundaries Looked Upon Unfavorably

Although an ordinance changing the present fire limits so as to leave out the square between Third and Fourth streets and the square between Seventh and Sixth streets between Fallowfield and McKean avenues, was presented to council Tuesday night at an adjourned session, the matter rests practically as it did before the meeting was held. But council has about as good an idea of what the property holders and citizens generally desire in the way of clearly defined fire limits as it is possible to secure. There were about 25 citizens present to voice their opinions on the matter. Incidentally the request of Joseph Roley to be allowed to build an addition to his livery barn, 30 by 36 feet dimensions on Fallowfield avenue near Fourth street was turned down. This request of Roley's was what brought the whole matter to a head.

The only action taken on the new fire ordinance presented by W. H. Calvert, chairman of the ordinance committee, was to refer it back to the ordinance committee for revision. If the wishes of the citizens and some members of council are taken into consideration when the ordinance is reported out of committee, it won't even be a semblance of its former self.

The ordinance as presented by Chairman Calvert of the ordinance committee was somewhat general in its bearings. It provided for a change in the fire limit boundarie excluding two squares, and provided for the erection of additions to buildings.

Citizens gave expression to their disapproval of any change in the present fire limits, arguing that if there was a change made it would be to encourage the building of wooden shacks that would depreciate valuable property now within the fire limit boundaries. It was a significant fact that not one of the property holders and citizens present except one or two councilmen, spoke in favor of the proposed change. Regarding the erection of the 30 by 36 foot addition at the rear of Roley's livery barn, the citizens said they believed the present ordinance should stand and that it should be enforced.

Arguments were produced by one or two members of council, to the effect that frame dwellings would be welcome additions along one or two of the streets in question and said that encouragement should be given to substantial men who desire to put up good frame buildings.

After every citizen present had been given expression on the matter and each councilman had given his opinion, a motion was put by Councilmen Frye and Gaut that the ordinance be returned to the ordinance committee for revision. The motion passed unanimously.

As soon as that matter was attended to, a motion was put by Council-

LAST CAST OF GLASS

Plate Glass Plant Gradually Being Closed Down

TWO DEPARTMENTS TO RUN

The last cast of glass at the Charleroi plant of the Pitsburg Plate Glass works will be made on Thursday and within a week more it is expected all the factory with the exception of the pot house and Carara departments will be closed down. Suspension was ordered for July 1, and since that time there has been a gradual diminishing of work.

At present Lee Showers is in charge of the plant, both the late superintendent A. H. Chandler and his assistant Fred Kelley having gone to Ford City, where they were transferred.

The Carara and pot house departments will be continued in operation indefinitely. It takes about a week after the last cast of glass is made before the glass can be finished and then with the exception of the two departments the plant will be closed.

URBAN POPULATION.

The Harrisburg Patriot takes issue with the assumption that people are flocking from the country to the cities. It says:

"It does not necessarily follow that people are deserting the farms for the city in any great numbers, because during the last ten years the percentage of persons living in cities or other incorporated places of more than 2,500 inhabitants has increased from 40.5 to 46.3.

"During those ten years millions of foreigners have become inhabitants of the United States and it is unfortunately true that most of them have stayed in the cities and towns. Unlike the great Scandinavian immigration a generation ago, very few of the immigrants that have come from Southern Europe within the last few years were farmers or have gone to live on farms.

"The great influx of foreigners may almost, if not quite, account for the percentage of increase in urban population. Nevertheless too many of our people live in cities and towns for their own welfare and happiness. During the last twenty years our urban population has increased 36.1 to 46.3 per cent of the whole.

"With the rapid increase in agricultural knowledge and interest in agricultural education and pursuits, it is possible that the exodus from country to city will soon be checked if it has not been already."

COUNTRY NOT DISSATISFIED.

The annual expenses of the nation could be cut down perhaps by 30 or 40 per cent., but at a tremendious sacrifice. Pensions might be cut off entirely, saving an enormous sum, but deeply shocking the country. All military expenditures might be whittled down to a minimum, leaving the United States in a condition inviting attack from abroad and exposing it to internal turmoil. The departmental service might be trimmed to meager allowances, low though the present pay scale is, and the government would suffer the certain consequences of cheapened administration. The Panama canal work might be abandoned. The improvement of the rivers and harbors might be suspended. The reclamation work might be stopped. All public building work might be dropped. All works in behalf of the public health might be curtailed. Appropriations for the Indians might be denied. All these things might be done, and the government at Washington would still live. But how?

There is no popular demand for economies of this character. The people are not groaning under the burden of taxation for the support of the government. They want some relief from the excessive cost of living, but they do not for a moment attribute their troubles on that score to the size of the annual appropriations.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The Young renaissance calls to mind a panning Jimmy Collins gave his pitching staff down in Kansas City one night in 1909, when the Millers were faltering for fair.

'You fellows give me a large number of swift shooting pains," remarked Jimmy. "Pitchers these days have to be well nursed and cologned and spattered with talcum powder to keep them in shape. You can't pitch but once a week and to throw a hundred times in an afternoon you have to go through an elaborate line-up warmup, and then nine times out of ten you come whimpering and whining back to the bench squealing about sore arms.

"Say" remarked James, as he warmed up to the subject, "do some of you whipped, gravel elbowed counterfeits know that old Cy Young in Boston never took the trouble to warm up before the game? The only warmup Cy took was when I rolled him the ball before the game and told him to tackle 'em just before the umps called the battery. Cy's warm-up was gained in taking off his sweater and then he would start slinging them over as though he had been working on the vibrator in a Turkish bath for half the night. Why, Cy could pitch two games in every series, and I never heard him howl about pains in his shoulder or saw him coming up to the bench doing the grandstand play of rubbing the shoulder of his pitching arm with his other hand.

"He is an old pitcher and has been for years and can pitch today without all of that warmup ceremony. It makes me tired to hear a lot of big husky guys whimpering about sore arms and about not getting enough time to warm up. You haven't pitched enough or played enough baseball to even get your arm seasoned to say nothing about strain. A lot of this stuff you are pulling is pure bunk and bluff and I don't fall for it."

Veteran ball players are criticising a change in the rules affecting hitters who get to base when no one is retired. Hans Wagner says:

"They tried to favor the batsman and keep him from getting a time at bat. Why don't they give him a hit in a case like this: A man is on first and the batsman hits a long fly. The fielder tries for it, and the runner hugs first, afraid it will be caught. The ball falls safely, and the runner is forced at second. The fielder never had his hands on the ball. The batter does not get a hit, but is charged with a time at bat. They had better let the rules alone, for there are too many such things coming up in game after game to monkey with new systems. Personally I don't care a rap but it is going to be bad for many younger players."

The Child Snob.

There is a natural, simple and rather high-minded etiquette among children; also is there an unlovely and artificial etiquette among children who have heard and seen too much of an unlovely world; for children can be the worst of snobs. Some little girls, ten or twelve years old, daughters of a rich neighborhood, were found to be examining the petticoats of new children who ventured in their neighborhood to play. Unless their underclothes were hand-made, they were not voted good enough to play in the established set.

A child may be cruelly ostracized for some difference, some lack of clothing or appearance. Do you remember the story of the poor little girl who used to bring blocks tied up in a napkin to school to look as though she had lunch like the other children? But among unspoiled and natural children the child who is different need not suffer for any length of time. A strong character and a sweet temperament will win through any artificial barrier of circumstances.—The Designer.

Give Love.

Every year I live I am more convinced that the waste of life lies in the love we have not given, the powers we have not used, the selfish prudence which will risk nothing, and which, shirking pain, misses happiness as well. GREENE WAS A LUCKY MAN

His Lost Five Dollar Bill Found In Two Places, and His Conscience Elastic.

"If anybody but Greene had told me this I wouldn't have believed it, and I wouldn't have believed him if it had happened to anybody but Greene," said the man. "The other day Greene lost five dollars. When he got home he began to figure out where he might have lost it. There was a chance every time he took out his pocketbook. He had had his pocketbook in his hand, he remembered, when he left the drug store at One Hundred and Fourth street, and again when he left the florist's at One Hundred and First street.

"In order to expedite the search Greene telephoned the news of his loss to the druggist. The druggist was very accommodating. He promised to put the whole drug store force on the job and to telephone back the result as soon as the premises had been thoroughly searched.

"While waiting for a message from the druggist Greene telephoned to the florist, and received similar assurances of co-operation. In about five minutes the druggist called up. The five dollars had been found lying under the edge of a dry goods box on the pavement and would be handed over to Greene.

"Greene jumped into his coat and grabbed his hat, but before he got to the door the florist telephoned that the five dollars had been found in the ash can just outside his door, and would be held against all comers until Greene called for it. Greene's conscience is of the India rubber variety, so he had no compunctions about collecting the five dollars from both druggist and florist. I'll bet that wouldn't happen to anybody else on earth but Greene."

Modern Teachers Criticised.

Our educators are owl-wise, our teachers are pedants and all their ambition is the turning out of smooth, well-polished philistines. It is certainly unfortunate that the favored type of superintendent of our public education should be such a hopeless philistine, possessed of all the conceit of the mediocre business man. Routine is his ideal. Originality is spurned and suppressed—Dr. Boris Sidis.

LIFE PERIODS AND CLOTHES

How a Man's Tastes In Raiment Differ From Youth to Careless Old Age.

It is interesting to follow a man in the matter of his raiment. There are established periods in his life wherein his tastes differ, and his ways differ, and from start to finish the matter is one of considerable interest.

When he is under age and at college, his taste runs riot in the matter of clothing. Weird checks, fearful plaids, remarkable cuts of balloon-like pants and box-like coats appeal to him. The matter of a quarter inch in length of a coat concerns him greatly, and he begins to have his pants pressed with four creases in them, pointing to the north, south, east and west.

When he goes to work he carries some of this wonderful raiment with him. It is a link that connects him with glad college days. But the link wears out, and he is busy, and presently you see him in wholly different attire. He is neat enough, but his weird taste has changed.

He now goes in for business suits and is painfully exact in his dress for the evening.

But as he gets along in business he ceases to have his clothing pressed. He marries and his wife keeps after him to put on a clean collar. He has long ceased to wear shoes for looks and has his shoes made to order because he likes 'em to be 4 17-18 inches wide at the toe in order to obtain comfort. He has them shined whenever any event comes along and reminds him of it.

And finally his whole family leap upon him. They call him slouchy, and when he gets a new suit it is a family matter in which the individual views of the family combine, and his own are lost. For it's always that way, and probably always will be.—Galveston News.

GUARANTY OF HIS SILENCE

Presence of Masterful Wife in Church Stopped Objectionable Noise Man Thought Was Singing.

Unexpectedly a city pastor who encouraged congregational singing gained a new parishioner. Keen though his delight in hearing his people sing, there was one member of his flock whose endeavors he never encouraged. But the man sang without encouragement, much to the discomfiture of pewholders anywhere near him, who claimed that his loud, unmusical voice threw them out of time and tune.

Repeated complaints convinced the minister that somebody would have to assume the responsibility of silencing the ambitious singer. He decided that the man's wife was best fitted for the job. Owing to a difference in religious views husband and wife attended different churches, but the minister knew her, so he called and explained his predicament. She was genuinely surprised.

"Do you mean to say he sings?" she sa

"Tries to," amended the pastor.

She thought a minute. "I shall have to come there to church," she said.

"I shall be glad to see you," said the minister, "but what effect will that have on your husband's singing?"

The look she gave him was more significant than words, and they meant a good deal

"John will never open his mouth when I am around," she said

NEXT THING IN ENTERPRISE

Moving Picture Privilege at Fashionable International Wedding Should Sell for Good Sum.

The promoter of sporting events had hardly seated himself in his modest office when a male person of unmistakably English-exterior opened the door and approached him affably.

"Old chap!" said he, "I represent Lord Harduppe, old chap. I'm his manager and all that sore of—"

"Lord Harduppe, who is to marry Miss Nothynge-Butte, the American millionairess?" queried the promoter.

"The same, old chap. The wedding takes place Tuesday week. His lordship naturally could not call upon you in person, but any arrangement that I may make with you will be quite satisfactory to him, I assure you."

"What's his lordship's game?" asked the promoter of sporting events. "Does he want me to pull off a prize fight at his bachelor dinner, or what?"

The manager of his lordship smiled mysteriously, drew his chair a bit closer to the other's and whispered a few words.

"What!" cried the promoter. "No!"

"Yes, really; upon my word, old chap!" said his visitor "You shall have the full American rights All his lordship asks is 10,000 down and 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. You know, of course, old chap, that it's quite unprecedented socially, and all that sort of thing, but his lordship needs the money, as you Americans say, and, really, it's such a piping chance, he can't afford to let it pass. It will be the easiest thing in the world, you know, to hide the machine among the flowers at the altar Why, my word, old chap, you ought to be able to book this thing in every theater in your blooming country!"

And thus, for the first time on record, was sold the moving-picture privilege at a fashionable international wedding —Brooklyn Times.

LIVE UNDER THE SAME ROOF

Then, and Not Until Then, Will You Become Really Acquainted With Your Friends.

Two households may stand side by side on the same street, two families live within hailing distance of one another for years in the same community, and yet have opposite tastes, sentiments and convictions The children of each growing up together may marry and, until they reach the period of new adjustment, never suspect how antagonistic has been their early training This is one reason why the first year of marriage is so beset with briars and thorns. Everybody knows that until people actually dwell under the same roof they do not mutually become acquainted. A single week spent with a friend at a house party does more to promote intimacy or indifference than years of superficial social intercourse

The touch-and-go meetings incidental to teas and receptions are the merest suggestions of personality, but when one sits day after day beside the fire or at the table with a neighbor, each ceasing to be on guard, real understanding begins Even correspondence, which to a degree is in the nature of revelation, does not make people so well acquainted and is by no means so true a test of disposition and temperament as the test of living together. During courtship and betrothal an engaged pair are on probation. Without effort each displays qualities of charm that cannot fail to be attractive The most ordinary speech has a flavor of compliment. The future husband and wife are walking through a land of dreams. Shall the dreams come true? They surely will if on both sides there are fixed principles of honor, justice and fidelity.—Mrs. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

HE WROTE THE GREAT PLAY

Friends Praised It, Famous Manager Took It to Read—and Then He Woke Up.

"My friends had always insisted that I could write a great play," said Jordan, "if I would only set my hand to the task. Well, to be frank, I had long cherished the idea myself that I possessed the ability to do something worth while in the way of providing material for the stage. Like so many of my fellow laborers in the journalistic field, however, I found it exceedingly difficult to secure the time which was necessary for the production of a drama. The best I could do was to steal an hour now and then to devote to the great work. This I did faithfully and zealously, and, after two years of study and earnest endeavor my play began to near completion.

"My friends were enthusiastic. I had been fortunate enough to hit upon an entirely new plot, and, if I may say so, I had handled it admirably. Each of the four acts was filled with thrilling situations; the comedy was subtle and insinuating; the pathos was genuine and the interest was splendidly sustained. Having administered the finishing touches, I took my play to a great producing manager. He had an office in a large building on Broadway.

"With my play done up in a neat package I entered the anteroom, where a young man greeted me respectfully and admitted that the great manager was not out of the city. In fact, the young man consented to take my card into his employer. I had waited only a minute or two when the young man returned and graciously conducted me to the manager, who cordially shook hands with me and said that he would be glad to personally read my play and consider it strictly on its merits."

"Yes. What then?"

"Well, just at that moment something fell somewhere, making a loud, clattering noise, so I crawled out of bed and put on my clothes."—Chicago Record-Herald

Why She Chose the Gown.

A woman in Cherryvale, Kan., was allowed her choice between a new parlor rug and a summer gown The Journal says that after three sleepless nights she decided on the dress She argued: "I can darken the parlor and the rug will look all right in subdued light, and besides, hundreds of folks will see the dress who would never see the rug."

CATHOLICS DEFEAT PRESBYTERIANS

Through Heavy Hitting and by Other Methods Big Score is Rolled Up

FINAL NUMBER 12 TO 5

Getting a lead of eight runs in the first inning, some of which were either decently or indecently presented, the Catholics bested the First Presbyterians by a score of 12 to 5 Tuesday evening. Of the Catholics 12 scores not more than 5, which is an ample sufficiency to win most games, were truly earned.

In the first inning the Catholics got four hits. The First Presbyterians got two errors. Osborne was wild and hit two men and presented a man with a base on balls. All these added together made eight scores Provance relieved Osborne in the first. In the second on two errors, two hits and an out two runs were scored. There was one run counted in the third on two hits, one a double and Bucanan scored a run in the fourth when he captured a home run.

The Presbyterians got three in the second inning simply by pasting the ball on the label. Frye, Mangan and Galbraith each got three baggies, and Berry interspersed with a single. A base on balls, a stolen base and a double meant Smith's score in the third and a single and a double in the sixth sent Mangan across with another. Score.

man Oscar C. Linn and W. H. Calvert that the request of Mr. Roley be granted. Councilman Frye read a portion of a late amendment to the fire limit ordinance, apparently heretofore lost sight of entirely, which referred the matter back to an old ordinance. This old ordinance somewhat more stringent in its regulations than the amendment, made such an addition utterly unlawful. The question was not put, and council adjourned to meet Thursday.

MARY STUART'S BLACK PEARL

Story of Accidental Recovery of the Scottish Queen's Necklace in a Little Shop.

A remarkable story appears in a Paris contemporary of the discovery of the black pearl necklace of Mary Queen of Scots, which disappeared on February 8, 1587. We give the story as we find it.

A lady cyclist had a mishap with the cord of her pince-nez while touring in an obscure town in Scotland. The lady pulled up at the general shop and tried to replace the cord. The shopkeeper, not having a suitable cord, told the lady he would take the wire from an old necklace which he showed her.

She, being struck with it, said she would buy it at the price asked—12s. 6d.—and do as best she could for a cord. On reaching her lodgings the lady cleaned the pearls and was struck with their beauty.

The lady's next procedure was to submit the necklace to an expert jewelry, who pronounced the pearls to be of very great value, and the Paris contemporary from which we have taken the story says they are worth at least £15,000, adding that on the day of the execution the unfortunate queen of Scotland divided among her women who attended, her ornaments and jewels, including the necklace of black pearls. How it passed into the hands of the ancestors of the shopkeeper is a mystery.

Too Much Ceremony.

A Cincinnati drummer happened to be [illegible] at Columbus with a number of legislators, and the courtly way in which they addressed each other greatly bored the commercial traveler. It was: "Will the gentleman from Hardin do this?" and "the gentleman from Franklin do that?" They invariably spoke to each other as the gentleman from whatever county they happened to hail from.

For 10 or 15 minutes the drummer bore it in silence

Then he suddenly crushed the statesmen by singing out in stentorian tones to the waiter: "Will the gendeman from Ethiopia please pass the butter!"

That ended the "gentleman from" business.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

acquisition of the tract whose development will mean much to Charleroi, seems to indicate that the time has arrived when the Steel Corporation wants to use the coal it has recently acquired.

If the development is made at once it will bring operations even nearer than Vesta as it is probable that the opening of the Redbird mine and the tipple at Dunlevy will be utilized, as well as a new opening at Beechwood Park. Until events prove to the contrary, Charleroi has much to hope for in the way of industrial development in the near future.

The Royal Oak.

The actual tree into which Charles vanished was hacked to pieces within a few years by relic hunters, and the present royal oak at Boscobe is merely a descendant. A salver made from the original royal oak is still possessed by Oxford university, and countless chairs, tables, altars, picture frames and snuff boxes claim to be made out of the same sacred material. Charles II. intended to commemorate his escape at Boscobel by establishing a new order of "Knights of the Royal Oak," but thought best "not to keep awake animosities." The name of the "Royal Oak" has been preserved in the navy since 1664 The first ship to bear this historic name met with an ignominious fate, being burned by the Dutch when they came up the Medway in 1667 Oak Apple day, now little observed except by school boys, was formerly a great anniversary and for long after the Restoration a Royal Oak invariably figured in all civic pageants.—Westminster Gazette.

Wagon Built Like a Peanut.

"Some very grotesque delivery wagons are turned out nowadays," said an Amerbury carriage manufacturer. "Many owners wish something emblematic of the business they are engaged in. There are wagons shaped like bottles of patent medicines, like shoes, like hats and like cigar boxes. There is a man in Old Orchard, Me., whose business is the selling of peanut candy, and he has a delivery wagon built in the shape of a large yellow peanut."

His Wonderful Memory.

"Excuse me," said the absent-minded professor, "but haven't we met before?"

"Why, yes," replied the beautiful girl. "Our hostess introduced us just before dinner tonight."

Oates is certainly covering ground for the Catholics. In one inning on Tuesday night he pulled down two extremely difficult chances, both of which he had to run a big distance for.

Galbraith in left garden made one of the nicest catches of the season when he captured a drive of Fagula's. As soon as the ball left the bat in the direction of deep left near the foul line Galbraith ducked his head and ran. Looking up when he thought the ball ought to descend he reached over his shoulder and nabbed the screamer.

Deitz has a delivery that would put Bill Glassburner or some of the rest of those proud old war horses to shame. He starts in by squinting at the batter. Then, he swings back his right arm, slowly rises on tip-toe, at the same time getting his pegging arm in motion. Then suddenly he brings that arm around, above or in under takes a step forward and the next thing you know the batter is shutting his eyes and banging at the ball.

ACTIVITY IN COAL REGION CAUSE ALL SORTS OF TALK

Steel Corporation Likely to Develop Tract Soon

HOW TRADE WAS REFUSED

Significance Attached to Turn Down of Jones and Langhlin's Offer

The activity of the United States Steel Corporation engine vicinity of Dunlevy, where the corporation recently acquired some big coal holdings, by purchase from the River Coal Combine, is causing all sorts of talk and speculation in this community. While nothing definitely is known as to the corporation's intentions, the concensus of opinion is that the 3,200 acres of undeveloped coal lying to the east and southeast of Charleroi are likely to be developed in the near future.

This coal, which is said to be the largest undeveloped tract in the Fourth Pool on this side of the river, will make a large development when the workings are once started, and will restore industrial conditions prevalent when the Vesta Mine No 1 was working at its best At one time this mine employed nearly 1,000 people who made Charleroi their trading headquarters. With the decline and ultimate working out of this mine Charleroi business interests received a severe blow. If this tract is opened and the work carried along on the same magnitude of the mine at Vesta No. 1. bright times are ahead for Charleroi

When Vesta No. 1 was approaching the end the Jones & Langhlin people tried to negotiate a trade with the Silver Combine who held this tract of 3,200 acres It could have been mined through the Vesta openings and loaded from that tipple, and would have continued the work there for a number of years longer on the same scale. For some unexplained reason the owners refused to let go of their possession, although there was not much likelihood that the River Combine or the Pittsburg Coal company, which practically controls the Combine, would develop the coal in the near future

In view of the recent deal this summer by which the United States Steel Corporation purchased between 7,000 and 8,000 acres of coal of the holdings of the Pittsburg Steel company and the River Combine, which included this tract of 3,200 acres, it is apparent that the refusal some years ago to deal with the Jones & Laughlin people was because the big Steel Corporation had its eye on this coal and wanted to use it at some future time. It has always been an open secret that the United States Steel Corporation would ultimately absorb the Pittsburg Coal Company, or the cream of its holdings, and the recent

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

Much local interest way manifested in the death of Charles Hickman, who cheated the gallows at Beaver Tuesday by dying two hours before the sentence was scheduled to be carried out. Hickman, who was formerly employed as a tinner in Charleroi by F H Ransom and others was well known here, and the news of his death before the sentence could be carried out created a profound sensation

Many of Hickman's acquaintances here were of the opinion that he committed suicide, but the post mortem examination revealed the fact that so far as the physicians could determine Hickman died a natural death. However, the stomach and some of the other organs have been sent to Pittsburg for chemical analysis, to fully determine whether or not Hickman secured poison.

As previously stated, the crime for which Hickman was to have been hanged was the murder of his wife, from who he was separated, whom he shot and killed in February, 1910, in Beaver. Hickman escaped from jail twice, but was recaptured, the first time at Monongahela.

On Eighth street there was more of a difference in the bids. Arrigo bid for the work $1,527.20, and Hastings and Piper asked for the job at $1,533.60. There was $6.40 difference between the two bids.

Ordinance Presented to Council Sent to Committee

CITIZENS DISCUSS MATTER

Proposed Reduction of Boundaries Looked Upon Unfavorably

Although an ordinance changing the present fire limits so as to leave out the square between Third and Fourth streets and the square between Seventh and Sixth streets between Fallowfield and McKean avenues, was presented to council Tuesday night at an adjourned session, the matter rests practically as it did before the meeting was held But council has about as good an idea of what the property holders and citizens generally desire in the way of clearly defined fire limits as it is possible to secure. There were about 25 citizens present to voice their opinions on the matter. Incidentally the request of Joseph Roley to be allowed to build an addition to his livery barn, 30 by 36 feet dimensions on Fallowfield avenue near Fourth street was turned down This request of Roley's was what brought the whole matter to a head.

The only action taken on the new fire ordinance presented by W. H. Calvert, chairman of the ordinance committee, was to refer it back to the ordinance committee for revision. If the wishes of the citizens and some members of council are taken into consideration when the ordinance is reported out of committee, it won't even be a semblance of its former self.

The ordinance as presented by Chairman Calvert of the ordinance committee was somewhat general in its bearings It provided for a change in the fire limit boundarie excluding two squares, and provided for the erection of additions to buildings.

Citizens gave expression to their disapproval of any change in the present fire limits, arguing that if there was a change made it would be to encourage the building of wooden shacks that would depreciate valuable property now within the fire limit boundaries. It was a significant fact that not one of the property holders and citizens present except one or two councilmen, spoke in favor of the proposed change. Regarding the erection of the 30 by 36 foot addition at the rear of Roley's livery barn, the citizens said they believed the present ordinance should stand and that it should be enforced.

Arguments were produced by one or two members of council, to the effect that frame dwellings would be welcome additions along one or two of the streets in question and said that encouragement should be given to substantial men who desire to put up good frame buildings.

After every citizen present had been given expression on the matter and each councilman had given his opinion, a motion was put by Councilmen Frye and Gaut that the ordinance be returned to the ordinance committee for revision. The motion passed unanimously.

As soon as that matter was attended to, a motion was put by Council-

URBAN POPULATION.

The Harrisburg Patriot takes issue with the assumption that people are flocking from the country to the cities. It says:

"It does not necessarily follow that people are deserting the farms for the city in any great numbers, because during the last ten years the percentage of persons living in cities or other incorporated places of more than 2,500 inhabitants has increased from 40.5 to 46.3.

"During those ten years millions of foreigners have become inhabitants of the United States and it is unfortunately true that most of them have stayed in the cities and towns. Unlike the great Scandinavian immigration a generation ago, very few of the immigrants that have come from Southern Europe within the last few years were farmers or have gone to live on farms.

"The great influx of foreigners may almost, if not quite, account for the percentage of increase in urban population. Nevertheless too many of our people live in cities and towns for their own welfare and happiness. During the last twenty years our urban population has increased 36.1 to 46.3 per cent of the whole.

"With the rapid increase in agricultural knowledge and interest in agricultural education and pursuits, it is possible that the exodus from country to city will soon be checked if it has not been already."

COUNTRY NOT DISSATISFIED.

The annual expenses of the nation could be cut down perhaps by 30 or 40 per cent., but at a tremendious sacrifice. Pensions might be cut off entirely, saving an enormous sum, but deeply shocking the country. All military expenditures might be whittled down to a minimum, leaving the United States in a condition inviting attack from abroad and exposing it to [illegible]. The departmental service might be trimmed to meager allowances, low though the present pay scale is, and the government would suffer the certain consequences of cheapened administration. The Panama canal work might be abandoned. The improvement of the rivers and harbors might be suspended. The reclamation work might be stopped. All public building work might be dropped. All works in behalf of the public health might be curtailed. Appropriations for the Indians might be denied. All these things might be done, and the government at Washington would still live. But how?

There is no popular demand for economies of this character. The people are not groaning under the burden of taxation for the support of the government. They want some relief from the excessive cost of living, but they do not for a moment attribute their troubles on that score to the size of the annual appropriations.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The Young renaissance calls to mind a pitching Jimmy Collins gave his pitching staff down in Kansas City one night in 1909, when the Millers were faltering for fair.

"You fellows give me a large number of swift shooting pains," remarked Jimmy. "Pitchers these days have to be well nursed and cologned and spattered with talcum powder to keep them in shape. You can't pitch but once a week and to throw a hundred times in an afternoon you have to go through an elaborate line-up warmup, and then nine times out of ten you come whimpering and whining back to the bench squealing about sore arms.

"Say" remarked James, as he warmed up to the subject, "do some of you whipped, gravel elbowed counterfeits know that old Cy Young in Boston never took the trouble to warm up before the game? The only warmup Cy took was when I rolled him the ball before the game and told him to tackle 'em just before the umps called the battery. Cy's warm-up was gained in taking off his sweater and then he would start slinging them over as though he had been working on the vibrator in a Turkish bath for half the night. Why, Cy could pitch two games in every series, and I never heard him howl about pains in his shoulder or saw him coming up to the bench doing the grandstand play of rubbing the shoulder of his pitching arm with his other hand.

"He is an old pitcher and has been for years and can pitch today without all of that warmup ceremony. It makes me tired to hear a lot of big husky guys whimpering about sore arms and about not getting enough time to warm up. You haven't pitched enough or played enough baseball to even get your arm seasoned to say nothing about strain. A lot of this stuff you are pulling is pure bunk and bluff and I don't fall for it."

Veteran ball players are criticising a change in the rules affecting hitters who get to base when no one is retired. Hans Wagner says:

"They tried to favor the batsman and keep him from getting a time at bat. Why don't they give him a hit in a case like this: A man is on first and the batsman hits a long fly. The fielder tries for it, and the runner hugs first, afraid it will be caught. The ball falls safely, and the runner is forced at second. The fielder never had his hands on the ball. The batter does not get a hit, but is charged with a time at bat. They had better let the rules alone, for there are too many such things coming up in game after game to monkey with new systems. Personally I don't care a rap but it is going to be bad for many younger players."

The Child Snob.

There is a natural, simple and rather high-minded etiquette among children; also is there an unlovely and artificial etiquette among children who have heard and seen too much of an unlovely world; for children can be the worst of snobs. Some little girls, ten or twelve years old, daughters of a rich neighborhood, were found to be examining the petticoats of new children who ventured in their neighborhood to play. Unless their underclothes were hand-made, they were not voted good enough to play in the established set!

A child may be cruelly ostracized for some difference, some lack of clothing or appearance. Do you remember the story of the poor little girl who used to bring blocks tied up in a napkin to school to look as though she had lunch like the other children? But among unspoiled and natural children the child who is different need not suffer for any length of time. A strong character and a sweet temperament will win through any artificial barrier of circumstances.—The Designer.

Give Love.

Every year I live I am more convinced that the waste of life lies in the love we have not given, the powers we have not used, the selfish prudence which will risk nothing, and which, shirking pain, misses happiness as well. No one ever yet was the poorer in the long run for having once in a lifetime "let out all the length of the reins" of the better nature.—Mary Cholmondeley.

Fitting Procedure.

If you want money, go to strangers, if you want advice, go to friends; if you want nothing go to relations.—Lippincott's.

GREENE WAS A LUCKY MAN

His Lost Five Dollar Bill Found in Two Places, and His Conscience Elastic.

"If anybody but Greene had told me this I wouldn't have believed it, and I wouldn't have believed him if it had happened to anybody but Greene," said the man. "The other day Greene lost five dollars. When he got home he began to figure out where he might have lost it. There was a chance every time he took out his pocketbook. He had had his pocketbook in his hand, he remembered, when he left the drug store at One Hundred and Fourth street, and again when he left the florist's at One Hundred and First street.

"In order to expedite the search Greene telephoned the news of his loss to the druggist. The druggist was very accommodating. He promised to put the whole drug store force on the job and to telephone back the result as soon as the premises had been thoroughly searched.

"While waiting for a message from the druggist Greene telephoned to the florist, and received similar assurances of co-operation. In about five minutes the druggist called up. The five dollars had been found lying under the edge of a dry goods box on the pavement and would be handed over to Greene.

"Greene jumped into his coat and grabbed his hat, but before he got to the door the florist telephoned that the five dollars had been found in the ash can just outside his door, and would be held against all comers until Greene called for it. Greene's conscience is of the India rubber variety, so he had no compunctions about collecting the five dollars from both druggist and florist. I'll bet that wouldn't happen to anybody else on earth but Greene."

Modern Teachers Criticised.

Our educators are owl-wise, our teachers are pedants and all their ambition is the turning out of smooth, well-polished philistines. It is certainly unfortunate that the favored type of superintendent of our public education should be such a hopeless philistine, possessed of all the conceit of the mediocre business man. Routine is his ideal. Originality is spurned and suppressed—Dr. Boris Sidis.

LIFE PERIODS AND CLOTHES

How a Man's Tastes in Raiment Differ From Youth to Careless Old Age.

It is interesting to follow a man in the matter of his raiment. There are established periods in his life wherein his tastes differ, and his ways differ, and from start to finish the matter is one of considerable interest.

When he is under age and at college, his taste runs riot in the matter of clothing. Weird checks, fearful plaids, remarkable cuts of balloon-like pants and box-like coats appeal to him. The matter of a quarter inch in length of a coat concerns him greatly, and he begins to have his pants pressed with four creases in them, pointing to the north, south, east and west.

When he goes to work he carries some of this wonderful raiment with him. It is a link that connects him with glad college days. But the link wears out, and he is busy, and presently you see him in wholly different attire. He is neat enough, but his weird taste has changed.

He now goes in for business suits and is painfully exact in his dress for the evening.

But as he gets along in business he ceases to have his clothing pressed. He marries and his wife keeps after him to put on a clean collar. He has long ceased to wear shoes for looks and has his shoes made to order because he likes 'em to be 4 17-18 inches wide at the toe in order to obtain comfort. He has them shined whenever any event comes along and reminds him of it.

And finally his whole family leap upon him. They call him slouchy, and when he gets a new suit it is a family matter in which the individual views of the family combine, and his own are lost. For it's always that way, and probably always will be.—Galveston News.

To Settle Boundary Dispute.

The century-old dispute over the boundary between Persia and Turkey in Asia from Mt. Ararat south to the Persian gulf seems to be at last in a fair way to be settled. At a conference recently held in Constantinople both governments agreed to submit the points in contest to The Hague tribunal and to abide by its decision.

GUARANTY OF HIS SILENCE

Presence of Masterful Wife in Church Stopped Objectionable Noise Man Thought Was Singing.

Unexpectedly a city pastor who encouraged congregational singing gained a new parishioner. Keen though his delight in hearing his people sing, there was one member of his flock whose endeavors he never encouraged. But the man sang without encouragement, much to the discomfiture of pewholders anywhere near him, who claimed that his loud, unmusical voice threw them out of time and tune.

Repeated complaints convinced the minister that somebody would have to assume the responsibility of silencing the ambitious singer. He decided that the man's wife was best fitted for the job. Owing to a difference in religious views husband and wife attended different churches, but the minister knew her, so he called and explained his predicament. She was genuinely surprised.

"Do you mean to say he sings?" she said.

"Tries to," amended the pastor.

She thought a minute. "I shall have to come there to church," she said.

"I shall be glad to see you," said the minister, "but what effect will that have on your husband's singing?"

The look she gave him was more significant than words, and they meant a good deal.

"John will never open his mouth when I am around," she said.

And John never has

NEXT THING IN ENTERPRISE

Moving Picture Privilege at Fashionable International Wedding Should Sell for Good Sum.

The promoter of sporting events had hardly seated himself in his modest office when a male person of unmistakably English-exterior opened the door and approached him affably.

"Old chap!" said he, "I represent Lord Harduppe, old chap. I'm his manager and all that sore of—"

"Lord Harduppe, who is to marry Miss Nothynge-Butte, the American millionairess?" queried the promoter.

"The same, old chap. The wedding takes place Tuesday week. His lordship naturally could not call upon you in person, but any arrangement that I may make with you will be quite satisfactory to him, I assure you."

"What's his lordship's game?" asked the promoter of sporting events. "Does he want me to pull off a prize fight at his bachelor dinner, or what?"

The manager of his lordship smiled mysteriously, drew his chair a bit closer to the other's and whispered a few words.

"What!" cried the promoter. "No!"

"Yes, really; upon my word, old chap!" said his visitor. "You shall have the full American rights. All his lordship asks is 10,000 down and 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. You know, of course, old chap, that it's quite unprecedented socially, and all that sort of thing, but his lordship needs the money, as you Americans say, and, really, it's such a piping chance, he can't afford to let it pass. It will be the easiest thing in the world, you know, to hide the machine [illegible] flowers at the altar. Why, my word, old chap, you ought to be able to book this thing in every theater in your blooming country!"

And thus, for the first time on record, was sold the moving-picture privilege at a fashionable international wedding.—Brooklyn Times.

LIVE UNDER THE SAME ROOF

Then, and Not Until Then, Will You Become Really Acquainted With Your Friends.

Two households may stand side by side on the same street, two families live within hailing distance of one another for years in the same community, and yet have opposite tastes, sentiments and convictions. The children of each growing up together may marry and, until they reach the period of new adjustment, never suspect how antagonistic has been their early training. This is one reason why the first year of marriage is so beset with briars and thorns. Everybody knows that until people actually dwell under the same roof they do not mutually become acquainted. A single week spent with a friend at a house party does more to promote intimacy or indifference than years of superficial social intercourse.

The touch-and-go meetings incidental to teas and receptions are the merest suggestions of personality, but when one sits day after day beside the fire or at the table with a neighbor, each ceasing to be on guard, real understanding begins. Even correspondence, which to a degree is in the nature of revelation, does not make people so well acquainted and is by no means so true a test of disposition and temperament as the test of living together. During courtship and betrothal an engaged pair are on probation. Without effort each displays qualities of charm that cannot fail to be attractive. The most ordinary speech has a flavor of compliment. The future husband and wife are walking through a land of dreams. Shall the dreams come true? They surely will if on both sides there are fixed principles of honor, justice and fidelity.—Mrs. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon. —Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

HE WROTE THE GREAT PLAY

Friends Praised It, Famous Manager Took It to Read—and Then He Woke Up.

"My friends had always insisted that I could write a great play," said Jordan, "if I would only set my hand to the task. Well, to be frank, I had long cherished the idea myself that I possessed the ability to do something worth while in the way of providing material for the stage. Like so many of my fellow laborers in the journalistic field, however, I found it exceedingly difficult to secure the time which was necessary for the production of a drama. The best I could do was to steal an hour now and then to devote to the great work. This I did faithfully and zealously, and, after two years of study and earnest endeavor my play began to near completion.

"My friends were enthusiastic. I had been fortunate enough to hit upon an entirely new plot, and, if I may say so, I had handled it admirably. Each of the four acts was filled with thrilling situations; the comedy was subtle and insinuating; the pathos was genuine and the interest was splendidly sustained. Having administered the finishing touches, I took my play to a great producing manager. He had an office in a large building on Broadway.

"With my play done up in a neat package I entered the anteroom, where a young man greeted me respectfully and admitted that the great manager was not out of the city. In fact, the young man consented to take my card into his employer. I had waited only a minute or two when the young man returned and graciously conducted me to the manager, who cordially shook hands with me and said that he would be glad to personally read my play and consider it strictly on its merits."

"Yes. What then?"

"Well, just at that moment something fell somewhere, making a loud, clattering noise, so I crawled out of bed and put on my clothes."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"The educational system which seeks to develop the mind into a money-making machine only is a mischievous system; but the system which crowds the mind with unrelated facts and turns out youths who can barely earn a living is scarcely less mischievous."—T. Sharper Knowlson

Why She Chose the Gown.

A woman in Cherryvale, Kan., was allowed her choice between a new parlor rug and a summer gown. The Journal says that after three sleepless nights she decided on the dress. She argued: "I can darken the parlor and the rug will look all right in subdued light, and besides, hundreds of folks will see the dress who would never see the rug."

CATHOLICS DEFEAT PRESBYTERIANS

Through Heavy Hitting and by Other Methods Big Score is Rolled Up

FINAL NUMBER 12 TO 5

Getting a lead of eight runs in the first inning, some of which were either decently or indecently presented, the Catholics bested the First Presbyterians by a score of 12 to 5 Tuesday evening. Of the Catholics 12 scores not more than 5, which is an ample sufficiency to win most games, were truly earned

In the first inning the Catholics got four hits. The First Presbyterians got two errors. Osborne was wild and hit two men and presented a [illegible] All these added together made eight scores Provance relieved Osborne in the first. In the second on two errors, two hits and an out two runs were scored. There was one run counted in the third on two hits, one a double and Berger scored a run in the fourth when he captured a home run

The Presbyterians got three in the second inning simply by pasting the ball on the label Frye, Mangan and Galbraith each got three baggers and Berry interspersed with a single. A base on balls, a stolen base and a double meant Smith's score in the third and a single and a double in the sixth sent Mangan across with another Score.

BASEBALL BINGLES

Mossioux was called back to third in the second inning after he had gone home because of an interference by Newton.

Capt. Wagner pulled himself from middle field after the first because of the brand of talk indulged in by some of the Presbyterians, and sent in Smith Frye to right, Mangan going to left.

Berry on second for the Presbyterians pulled off one or two pretty fielding stunts

Oates is certainly covering ground for the Catholics. In one inning on Tuesday night he pulled down two extremely difficult chances, both of which he had to run a big distance for.

Galbraith in left garden made one of the nicest catches of the season when he captured a drive of Fagula's. As soon as the ball left the bat in the direction of deep left near the foul line Galbraith ducked his head and ran. Looking up when he thought the ball ought to descend he reached over his shoulder and nabbed the screamer.

Deitz has a delivery that would put Bill Glassburner or some of the rest of those proud old war horses to shame. He starts in by squinting at the batter. Then, he swings back his right arm, slowly rises on tip-toe, at the same time getting his pegging arm in motion. Then suddenly he brings that arm around, above or in under takes a step forward and the next thing you know the batter is shutting his eyes and banging at the ball.

NO CHANGE TO BE MADE IN FIRE LIMITS

man Oscar C. Linn and W. H. Calvert that the request of Mr. Roley be granted. Councilman Frye read a portion of a late amendment to the fire limit ordinance, apparently heretofore lost sight of entirely, which referred the matter back to an old ordinance. This old ordinance somewhat more stringent [illegible] tions than the amendment, made such an addition utterly unlawful The question was not put, and council adjourned to meet Thursday.

MARY STUART'S BLACK PEARL

Story of Accidental Recovery of the Scottish Queen's Necklace in a Little Shop.

A remarkable story appears in a Paris contemporary of the discovery of the black pearl necklace of Mary Queen of Scots, which disappeared on February 8, 1587 We give the story as we find it

A lady cyclist had a mishap with the cord of her pince-nez while touring in an obscure town in Scotland. The lady pulled up at the general shop and tried to replace the cord The shopkeeper, not having a suitable cord, told the lady he would take the wire from an old necklace which he showed her

She, being struck with it, said she would buy it at the price asked—12s. 6d.—and do as best she could for a cord On reaching her lodgings the lady cleaned the pearls and was struck with their beauty.

The ladys next procedure was to submit the necklace to an expert jewelry, who pronounced the pearls to be of very great value, and the Paris contemporary from which we have taken the story says they are worth at least £15,000, adding that on the day of the execution the unfortunate queen of Scotland divided among her women who attended, her ornaments and jewels, including the necklace of black pearls How it passed into the hands of the ancestors of the shopkeeper is a mystery.

Too Much Ceremony.

A Continental drummer happened to be present at a table at Columbus with a number of legislators, and the courtly way in which they addressed each other greatly bored the commercial traveler. It was: "Will the gentleman from Hardin do this?" and "the gentleman from Franklin do that?" They invariably spoke to each other as the gentleman from whatever county they happened to hail from

For 10 or 15 minutes the drummer bore it in silence

Then he suddenly crushed the statesmen by singing out in stentorian tones to the waiter: "Will the gentleman from Ethiopia please pass the butter!"

That ended the 'gentleman from" business.—Hercules Sunday Herald.

Lecturer John Rickey of the Knights of Columbus, was appointed to have general supervision, and will name committees which will meet on Sunday to lay definite plans. A meeting of the Knights of Columbus was held Tuesday night which was attended by Father Poetz, of Dunbar, and Father Macelh of Monongahela.

ACTIVITY IN COAL REGION CAUSES ALL SORTS OF TALK

acquisition of the tract whose development will mean much to Charleroi, seems to indicate that the time has arrived when the Steel Corporation wants to use the coal it has recently acquired.

If the development is made at once it will bring operations even nearer than Vesta as it is probable that the opening of the Redbird mine and the tipple at Dunlevy will be utilized, as well as a new opening at Beechwood Park Until events prove to the contrary, Charleroi has much to hope for in the way of industrial development in the near future.

The Royal Oak.

The actual tree into which Charles vanished was hacked to pieces within a few years by relic hunters, and the present royal oak at Boscobe is merely a descendant A salver made from the original royal oak is still possessed by Oxford university, and countless chairs, tables, altars, picture frames and snuff boxes claim to be made out of the same sacred material. Charles II intended to commemorate his escape at Boscobel by establishing a new order of "Knights of the Royal Oak," but thought best "not to keep awake animosities" The name of the "Royal Oak" has been preserved in the navy since 1664 The first ship to bear this historic name met with an ignominious fate, being burned by the Dutch when they came up the Medway in 1667 Oak Apple day, now little observed except by school boys, was formerly a great anniversary and for long after the Restoration a Royal Oak invariably figured in all civic pageants.—Westminster Gazette

Wagon Built Like a Peanut.

"Some very grotesque delivery wagons are turned out nowadays" said an Amerbury carriage manufacturer. "Many owners wish something emblematic of the business they are engaged in There are wagons shaped like bottles of patent medicines, like shoes, like hats and like cigar boxes There is a man in Old Orchard, Me whose business is the selling of peanut candy, and he has a delivery wagon built in the shape of a large yellow peanut"

His Wonderful Memory.

"Excuse me," said the absent-minded professor, "but haven't we met before?"

"Why, yes," replied the beautiful girl "Our hostess introduced us just before dinner tonight"

"Ah, I remember! I never forget a face!"—Stray Stories
